

Migraine, starting on the right

R.W., Munich

Patient: 59 years old, female.

Case history: The patient had been suffering from migraine attacks for 13 years, frequently several times a week. Dental status revealed an amalgam filling in 1/6, i.e. the tooth which belongs to the stomach meridian. Bioenergetic EAV testing with cross-linked test technology test ampoules revealed a clear case of mercury intoxication. (Since the patient worked at a PC the whole day, the metal filling could have been acting as an antenna as well as causing amalgam stress, in any case the electrical smog test was positive.) A post-operative scar on the right side of the neck runs over the stomach meridian, as does a broad appendectomy scar. In fact, the migraines always began at the starting point of the right stomach meridian. In Schimmel's irritation test (EAP) revealed that the stomach meridian was blocked on both sides.

Therapy: The dentist who had referred the patient willingly removed the amalgam filling. The frequency and intensity of the migraine attacks eased immediately. Amalgam elimination therapy was carried out. Scar interference was eliminated with the scar interference elimination programme using endogenous oscillations. Therapy was concluded after 10 sessions since there were no more migraine attacks.
